

AGS helped bring harmony
& balance to this library.

Using sunshades to support the design concept.

The Chinatown Branch of the Chicago Public Library was built to become a civic, educational, and social hub for the neighborhood. Feng Shui design principles, including the building's softened triangular shape were used to complement the community's values.

AGS vertical shades were a perfect fit for this concept and helped make the exterior of the building to look like a glowing lantern at night. Our shades also provided an incredibly efficient sun-shading barrier to help the building achieve LEED Gold status.
